ABOUT THE COUNCIL

A commitment to a language that has no state of its own

Since Sindhi is not part of India, Sindhi is only scheduled Indian language without a state or union territory to call its own. The National Council for Promotion of Sindhi Language was set up under the Ministry of Education to make sure that fact never becomes a disadvantage for the community that speaks it.

Working through scholarships, university chairs, publication grants and the teacher training, the Council supports Sindhi learners, writers and educators wherever they live — from Kutch and Ulhasnagar to the Delhi, Jaipur and beyond — keeping the language actively taught, read and spoken across generations.

The Council also documents dialects, funds research into the Sindhi linguistics and literature, and works with state

Our Vision

A future in which every Sindhi speaker in India, regardless of where they live, has the opportunity to learn, use and pass on their language with pride.

Our Mission

To support teaching, research, publication and cultural activity in Sindhi through scholarships, academic chairs and grants administered in partnership with universities and state governments.
